

Transforming Global Health Partnerships

Critical Reflections and Visions of Equity at the Research-Practice Interface

Anna Stewart-Ibarra, Desiree LaBeaud
Editors

This is a book about the human experience of conducting global health research, linked to operational responses to the control and prevention of diseases worldwide. Rather than a manual or how-to guide, we propose a roadmap and vision of equitable, sustainable, and impactful partnerships, shared through a rich interweaving of voices: North and South, academics and community practitioners, senior mentors and trainees, multiple generations, and multiple disciplines. We focus on the stories that need to be told, the successes and the failures, and visions for a healthier and more compassionate future for humanity.

This book was written by more than 90 authors from 26 countries, bringing diverse perspectives on global health partnerships' past, present, and future. Authors address the colonial legacy of global health and the necessity of decolonization, ethics, stigma, systems approaches and transdisciplinary science, community participation and communication, refugee health, post-disaster recovery, Planetary Health and One Health, and working towards partnerships to co-create a more peaceful, equitable, and loving world. This vision is urgently needed to address the challenges emerging in the context of global climate change, the COVID-19 pandemic, and other threats.

Transforming Global Health Partnerships will be published Open Access, allowing readers everywhere free and unlimited access to the ebook, with the option to purchase a reduced-cost print edition. Publishing this book open access has been made possible through the collaborative efforts and generosity of the editors, authors, friends, and colleagues.
